

For Your Personal Reflection in November

Article: <https://www.globalsistersreport.org/news/religious-life/column/creating-generational-remix-mission>

Questions: 1. The author writes: “While religious life has always been intergenerational to some extent, this unique generational mix has never happened before...We have a sacred window of opportunity for the present generations — youngest to oldest — to mix and mingle in community for mission.” What is your “sacred window of opportunity” as you read & reflect?

2. The author also posits: “In religious life, it is about mission! Each generation brings their own flavor, and the remix spices it all up in a new way, for the sake of God's mission.” With these statements in mind, ponder the image by the article title. What is your intergenerational invitation?
